

Glengarry Place for the Arts

PRESS RELEASE

09 October 2007

Maxville, October 10th: With ten days to go before the “drawbridge” is lowered for the Medieval Feast, being organized by the Glengarry Place for the Arts, on Saturday, October 20th, the packed program has been announced.

Nearly six hours of feasting and revelry are planned, with four courses of authentic dishes (including vegetarian meals for those that want them), interspersed with period entertainment. Two Montreal-based groups of medieval enthusiasts will headline the list of entertainers. Estavel Ensemble de musique ancienne will perform music from the period on traditional instruments, and Les Maîtres d'Armes from will demonstrate authentic medieval martial arts.

There is no shortage of local talent either: Wes Libbey (courtesy of the Glengarry Historical Society) will act as town-crier; the Glengarry Gaelic Singers will provide period songs; Sandra Cordeiros will demonstrate medieval belly dancing (believe it or not); Steve Warburton will be acting as the Court Jester/Magician; and the Metcalf Castle Dancers will perform a formal Medieval Dance.

The deadline for purchasing or ordering tickets is Sunday, October 14th. Admission will be by ticket only, at a cost of $50 per person. The bulk of the profits will be donated to the Hôpital Glengarry Memorial Hospital Foundation.

The event begins at 5:30pm, at the Metcalfe Centre in Maxville, with merchants and entertainers dressed in authentic costume. Guests are encouraged to wear period dress, and the names of several area costume rental stores are listed on the GPA website. Tickets can be ordered online at www.glengarryplace.ca/Tickets.cfm.
